

Deer

One of the local herd deer presented with a lump under her chin. It became a very large abscess.

Relaxation techniques were applied, with positive results. Essential oils were also used.

This was a very cold time of the year and support was offered through the relaxation techniques. The deer responded favorably and healed well.

After a few days, the abscess opened and drained. The deer showed improvement in her activity and actions. Her energy levels steadily improved, as observed with ongoing visits.
